Americans okay with economy, but feel not so good about Trump

A majority expect the US stock market to be higher by the end of this year, while 30% anticipate a decline

BLOOMBERG
Chicago, July 17

strength of the US economy, and their own fortunes.

ALMOST SIX MONTHS into Donald Trump's presidency, Americans are feeling fairly optimistic about their jobs, the

That should be welcome news for the president, except for one thing: The public's confidence largely appears to be in spite of Trump, not because of him.

The latest Bloomberg National Poll shows 58% of Americans believe they're moving closer to realizing their own career and financial aspirations, tied for the highest recorded in the poll since the question was first asked in February 2013.

A majority expect the US stock market to be higher by the end of this year, while 30% anticipate a decline. Yet they don't necessarily think Trump deserves credit for rising markets and falling unemployment.

Just 40% of Americans approve of the job he is doing in the White House, and 55% now view him unfavorably, up 12 points since December.

Sixty-one percent say the nation is headed down the wrong path, also up 12 points since December.

Trump scored his best numbers on his handling of the economy, but even there the news for him isn't great.

Less than half of Americans — 46% — approve of Trump's performance on the economy; 44% disapprove. He gets slightly better marks for job creation, with 47% approving.

"If you take the president's scores out of this poll, you see a nation increasingly happy about the economy," said pollster Ann Selzer, who oversaw the survey.

"When Trump's name is mentioned, the clouds gather."

In nearly every measure of his performance, the poll indicates that Trump's tumultuous presidency is not wearing well with the public.

A 56% majority say they're more pessimistic about Trump because of his statements and actions since the election.

That's a huge swing since December when 55% said his statements and actions made them more optimistic about him.

The public has grown more skeptical that Trump will deliver on some of his most ambitious campaign promises.

Two-thirds don't think he'll succeed in building a wall along the Mexican border during his first term. Over half say he won't be able to revive the coal industry.

A majority — 54% — believe Trump will manage to create trade deals more beneficial to the US, but that's down from 66% in December.
